ERSKINE OF POTTODRIE.

KNIGHT-ERSKINE, HENRY WILLIAM, Esq. of Pittodrie, co. Aberdeen, b. 1853; s. his father, 1870.

Lineage.—This family is descended from John, 2nd son of Sir Thomas Erskine, of Erskine, the 7th generation of that ancient family, who, by his wife, Janet Keith, brought to his descendants the Earldom of Mar, 1565, after having been unjustly prevented from succeeding to it for 130 years, and the present Earl is the heir general of the marriage. The 2nd son was Sir John Erskine, founder of the family of Dun, which terminated in an heiress, Margaret, who m. 1793, Archibald, afterwards Marquess of Ailsa. The 4th generation of this family was John Erskine, of Dun, who m. Katherine, dau. of William Monypenny, of Pitmillie, and had two sons, i. Sir John, who fell with his father at Flodden 1513, leaving a son, John, who s. his grandfather, held the estate for 76 years, and was the well-known Superintendent and Reformer of the Church. When he was five years old, his uncle, Sir Thomas Erskine, by his father's will, 1512, became his guardian, and took great charge of his education, and increased his estate, even at his own expense.

The 2nd son of John Erskine and Katherine Monypenny his wife, was Thomas, whose full style was "our lovit familiar Clerk and Counsellour, Sir THOMAS ERSKINE, of Brechin, Knycht, our Secreter." He was the direct ancestor of the Erskines of Pittodrie. About 1525, when King JAMES V. was a boy of 12, he was, as Master Thomas Erskine, of Halcoun, appointed "Secreter to our Souvrain Lord." He soon attained the King's highest favour and confidence, which he retained till his Majesty's death 1542. In 1528 he was appointed Keeper of Tantallon Castle, the stronghold of the Douglases, which he surrendered, at the King's desire, 23 Feb. 1534, getting part of the lordship of Brechin in recompense. He was knighted 1529–30.

He had a grant of the lordships of Brechin and Navar in 1534, and had the office of Bailliary and Chamberlainry of the lordship of Brechin; but after the King's death, 1542, he surprisingly exchanged them with his cousin, John, Lord Erskine, for the barony of Balhagardy, in co. Aberdeen, which had been long in the family, and, 1489, had been the style of the eldest son, Alexander, afterwards Lord Erskine. Pittodrie came with this exambion 1549, confirmed 1650, but it was thought a poor compensation.

Sir Thomas was a Lord of Session, or one of the Judges of the Supreme Court. He m. FARQUHARSON OF WHITEHOUSE.

FARQUHARSON, ANDREW, Esq. of Whitehouse, co. Aberdeen, J.P. s. his father, 20 Feb. 1855.

Lineage.—Families of this surname were, from the earliest accounts, located in Strathdee, in the parishes of Crathie and Ceannadrochaid, or Braemar, co. Aberdeen, and were at one time very numerous. The first person of eminence of the race was FIONNLADH MOR, so called from his great stature. He was head of the clan commonly known in the Highlands as Clan Fionnladh or Farquharson of Braemar. Fionnladh was killed at the battle of Pinkie, in 1547, in the reign of Queen Mary, carrying the royal standard of Scotland, and was buried in the churchyard of Inveresk, at a short distance from the field of battle. The place was long known in that parish as the "Long Highlandman's Grave." Fionnladh m. 1st, a dau. of the Baron Reid of Kincardine Stewart, and had issue four sons, William, James, Alexander, and John, the descendants of whom generally settled on the borders of the counties of Perth and Angus, south of Braemar; some of them in the district of Athol, who took the name of M'Erachar, the Gaelic for M'Farquhar, the surname of Fionnladh's father, afterwards Farquharson, but are all now extinct, or nearly so. Fionnladh m. 2ndly, Beatrix Gardyne, dau. of Gardyne of that ilk, or Banchory (now Garden), and had five sons, viz., DONALD, Robert, Lachlan, Fionnladh, and George, and five daus. This lady, the second wife of Fionnladh Mor, was celebrated as a skilful performer on the harp, and on an occasion of her performing in Queen Mary's presence, Her Majesty was so highly gratified as to present her own harp to Beatrix, hailing her as the queen of music and song, and Sappho of the North. She afterwards m. Robertson of Lude, of an ancient Perthshire family, and the harp is still in the possession of a descendant of that family, Stuart of Dalguise, co. Perth. (See Miss Strickland's Lives of the Queens of Scotland, Dal'non Music, and Whyte Melville's, The Queen Maries). The eldest son,

DONALD FARQUHARSON, of the Castleton of Braemar, and Monaltrie, m. 1st, Jean Ogilvie, dau. of Newton, and had issue seven sons, viz., DONALD, Robert, Alexander, James, John, George, and Thomas, and one dau. Ann, m. M'Pherson of Nuid, afterwards Cluny. This Donald, of the Castleton and Monaltrie, was Chamberlain and Bailie to George, Earl of Huntly, in Strathdee, then administrator of the Earldom of Mar, under Queen Mary, and was also under the sign manual of J.M. JAMES VI. of Scotland, in 1584, appointed Keeper of his forests in Braemar, Cromar, and Strathdee. (See register of Privy Seal, vol. 51, page 8.) His eldest son,

By a contract extant, dated 27 Aug. 1632, betwixt John, Earl of Ar, and John, Lord Erskine, his son, on the one part, and on the other, the said Donald Farquharson, the Earl, became bound to grant a feu charter to him and his heirs male of the lands of Monaltrie, &c., in Strathdee, also the lands of A-hindryne, in the parish of Ceannadrochaid, or Braemar, for a yearly payment in money for all time coming, and certain services when required; and of the same date, the said Earl and his son granted a feu charter containing a precept of sasine for infesting him therein, upon which he was infest personally upon the 11th day of October thereafter, Robert Farquharson, of Cloack, or Invercauld, his cousin-german acting as bailie for the Earl of Mar, the witnesses being Robert Farquharson, of Finzean, James Farquharson, of Inverey, and Donald Farquharson, son of Alexander Farquharson, of Allanaquoich the two first, his uncles, and the last, his cousin-german.

Donald Oige was Colonel of the Braemar and Strathdee men, under the illustrious Marquess of Montrose, in the time of CHARLES I. Col. Farquharson fell in a sudden affray with the Covenanters' horse, led by Sir John Urrie, at Aberdeen, 15 March, 1645, and was buried in the Laird of Drum's Aisle, forming a part of the principal ecclesiastical edifice in that city. Neither the sacrifices which he made in equipping his followers, nor his personal exertions ever having been recompensed by CHARLES II., on his Restoration, his son Charles found it necessary to dispose of his paternal property, the lands of Monaltrie, in 1702, to Alexander Farquharson youngest brother of John Farquharson, of Invercauld, line his wife, dau. of William Tighe, Esq. of Woodstock.

Lineage—The claim of this family to an ancient and noble Scottish descent, is substantiated by a short certificate of pedigree, made in the year 1755, for Robert Finlay, a Military Knight in the Court of Stockholm, by John Campbell, Lyon King of Arms for the Kingdom of Scotland. This pedigree, which is in the possession of Rev. J. W. Finlay, and is registered in the Lyon Office of Scotland, sets forth the descent of Sir Robert from the ancient family of Finlay of Balchristie, and its intermarriages with the families of Balfour, Scott, and Kinnear, all old Barons of co. Fife; also their connection in the female line with Lord Grey, with Stewart, Earl of Orkney, Ogilvie, Earl of Airlie, and Kennedy, Earl of Cassilis. Of this family,

ARCHIBALD FINLAY gave signal proofs of his valour and military skill at the battle of Largs, 1263, fought between the Scots and Norwegians: from him, in direct descent, came

ALEXANDER FINDLAY, Laird of Kirkcudbright, and Lord of the royal boroughs of Dumfries, Lough Mahon, &c. He fought for Queen MARY at the battle of Langside, and on her defeat and flight into England in 1568, he passed over to Ireland, and settled at Killyshandra, co. Cavan; his son, Lineage.—For a detailed account of the origin and early history of the FitzGerald family refer to the pedigree, in the Peerage, of the DUKE OF LEINSTER, its head and representative.

The FITZGERALDS of the Little Island are descended from John, the 4th son of Maurice, 4th Earl of Kildare. John's descendants became settled in Waterford, and occupied a prominent position in that town till the defeat of JAMES II., at the Boyne ruined the fortunes of that monarch's adherents. On the 2nd of June, 1690, he joined King JAMES II.'s army as 1st

Lieut.-Col. of Horse, and was killed at the battle of the Boyne, July 1st, 1690. He left three sons, Richard, m. Rebecca, only child of Thomas Grove, Esq. of Worcester; Thomas; and George; and one dau., Elizabeth, m. Anthony Colclough, Esq. of Ballysop, co. Wexford. DINGWALL-FORDYCE OF BRUCKLAY.

DINGWALL - FORDYCE, ALEXANDER, Esq. of Brucklay Castle, co. Aberdeen, b. 16 Sept. 1873.

Lineage.—This family derives its descent on the side of the Dingwalls from the Highland clan of that name in Ross-shire, of whom the Laids of Kildun and Strabroke were chief. Some of these came to Buchan, in Aberdeenshire, about the beginning of the 16th century, and settled there, apparently with the view of escaping from the interminable feuds of their own part of the country. The first of these of whom there are authentic accounts, as ancestors of the families of Culsh and Brucklay, is WILLIAM DINGWALL, of Sealscrook, parish of Monquhitter, co. Aberdeen, who was b. about 1590. He m.

Barbara Barclay, and by her had three sons, Arthur; George; and John. The eldest of these, and the only one who left issue, was

ARTHUR DINGWALL, b. about 1620; m. 1642, Lucres, dau. of John Irvine, of Brucklay, one of the old and well-known family of Irvine, of Drum, Aberdeenshire. He d. 1707, having had, with three daus., four sons. The eldest son,

WILLIAM DINGWALL, Esq. of Brucklay, b. 1643; d. 1733, having m. 1711, Anna, dau. of John Gordon, of Nethermuir, and had, with daus. (one of whom, Lucretia, m. her cousin-german, William Dingwall, as afterwards alluded to), a son,

WILLIAM DINGWALL, Surgeon in the army, b. 1721; s. to Brucklay, on his father's death, 1733; d. unm. 1801, and was s. by his brother, JOHN DINGWALL, of St. James's Street, London, b. 1724, and d. 1812, having m. Patience, dau. of Mr. Huddart, of London, by whom he had no issue. A few years before his death, viz., 1807, he entailed his lands of Brucklay, Artamford, &c., on his grand-nephew, JOHN DINGWALL, and a series of heirs, his personal property, amounting to a very large sum being vested in trustees, for the purchase of other lands in England or Scotland, to be entailed on the same series.

These consisted, in the first place, of the descendants of his sister Lucretia, and her husband William Dingwall, Writer in Edinburgh, who was also her cousin-german, being the 3rd son of Arthur Dingwall, of Brownhill; and in the second place, of the descendants of the same William Dingwall, by his 2nd marriage 1744, with Jane Fordyce, of Culsh, heiress of entail of her brother William Fordyce, of Culsh, and dau. of John Fordyce, of Gask and Culsh, by Lillias, dau. of William Lindsay, of Culsh, one of the Dowhill branch of the noble house of Balcarres (see "Lives of the Lindsays," vol. I. p. 434).

By the death without issue, 1840, of John Duff Dingwall (who s. to Brucklay 1833, on the death of his father, John, the first institute of entail), the first series of heirs, descendants of Lucretia Dingwall, became extinct, upon which,

ARTHUR DINGWALL-FORDYCE, Esq. of Culsh, b. 1797, the representative of the second series of heirs, descendants of William Dingwall by his 2nd marriage with Jean Fordyce, of Culsh, was called to the succession. He m. 1822, his cousin, Jessy, dau. of Capt. Arthur Dingwall-Fordyce, of the Bengal Engineers, s. to Culsh, on the death of his grandfather (Commissary of Aberdeen), 1834, and to Brucklay, as already noticed, 1840. He d. s. p. 30 Dec. 1843, and was s. by his brother. That gentleman's grandfather, ARTHUR DINGWALL-FORDYCE, Esq. of Culsh, LL.D., b. at Brucklay Castle 8 Dec. 1745; Advocate in Aberdeen, and last Judge of the Commissary or Consistorial Court there, was son of William Dingwall and Jean Fordyce of Culsh. The mansion of Fulford was garrisoned by CHARLES I., and was taken by a part of Fairfax's army under the command of Col. Okey, Dec. 1645. Many knights of the family distinguished themselves in the Holy Land, Sir Baldwin de Fulford more particularly. Sir Thomas Fulford was one of the Knights who went up with the Earl of Devon, and relieved Exeter when besieged by Perkin Warbeck, 1497.

Prince styles Sir Baldwin "a great soldier and a traveller of so undaunted resolution, that, for the honour and liberty of a royal lady, in a castle besieged by the infidels, he fought a combat with a Saracen, for bulk and bigness an unequal match (as the representation of him cut in the wainscot in Fulford Hall doth plainly show), whom yet he vanquished, and rescued the lady." Lineage.—MAJOR ARCHIBALD FULLARTON, of Kilmichael and Whitefarland, son of Dr. Louis Fullarton, of Kilmichael, by Susannah Stewart his wife, represented a very ancient family, which has been in possession of their present estates for nearly five hundred years.

FERGUS FULLARTON, or MACLOY, obtained the lands of Kilmichael for services rendered to ROBERT THE BRUCE while he was in concealment in the Isle of Arran. From this Fergus, the property descended in regular succession to Major Fullarton. It is to the above-named Fergus Fullarton, or Macloy, that Sir Walter Scott makes allusion under the name of Fitzlouis in the Lord of the Isles. Of the Kilmichael family, a scion was Fullarton of Glendernel, one of whom was Bishop of Edinburgh from 1720 to 1727.

MAJOR ARCHIBALD FULLARTON was a Magistrate and Deputy Lieutenant for co. Bute. He was married twice; by his 1st wife, Jane, dau. of the late Rev. Dr. William Peebles, of Ayr, he had an only child,

Lineage.—This family was one of great respectability and opulence in the co. Kerry, possessing property in the neighbourhood of Dingle, the Samphires, Ballybunion, &c., long before the English settlers, under the "Plantation Scheme," established themselves in the locality. The first of whom there is any record was

JOHN FULLER (alias Bowler), who is mentioned in the "Desmond Survey," A.D. 1583, as possessed of the townland of Bowlerstown (Ballybowler), and "certain lands in Ballybeg." He mortgaged Bowlerstown to Stephen Rice 1610. According to an Inquisition taken at Killarney, he and Maurice Fuller (probably his son) were seized in fee of the townlands of Ballyristin, or Ballyristeenig, and Ballytobin, or Ballytoeenig, and conveyed them in 1635 to Teige Moriarty. That John Fuller was a man of mark at this period appears by an Inquisition taken at Killarney, 18 Aug. 1635 (Inq. No. 59, CHARLES I., co. Kerry, Chancery, callendered by the Record Commissioners 1818), which found that he held his lands "de Dño Rege in capite p. service militar," i. e. by Knight's service. ANDREW FULLER (alias Bowler) was High Sheriff co. Kerry 1610, and was one of the Commissioners for a levy to build a wall round Tralee in 1612. In a conveyance of lands in co. Kerry to him from Sir Thomas Roper, Knt. (created, 6 May, 1627, Viscount Baltinglass), his name is spelt "Bowlder."

Mr. Garstin, who is M.A. and LL.B. of Trin. Coll. Dublin (ad. eund. Oxon.), a Magistrate for the co. Dublin, F.S.A., a Member of Council, and sometime Treasurer of the Royal Irish Academy, purchased the Braganstown estate, after the death of the Rev. Anthony Garstin, head of the family originally seated there. (See succeeding genealogy.)

Lineage.—A descendant, it is supposed, of the ancient house of Garstin, seated at Garstin, co. Lancaster, and Lords of the Manor of Walton, in the 13th century,

MAJOR JAMES GARSTIN, b. about 1695, went to Ireland with CROMWELL'S army 1649, and in consideration of his military services and money advanced by him, was granted extensive lands in co. Meath, and Bragganstown, co. Louth (an estate forfeited by the Taaffes, and which enjoyed manorial rights). These grants were confirmed by letters patent of CHARLES II., 5 Feb. 1666, the original of which is in the possession of the present Mr. Garstin, of Braganstown. Major Garstin was High Sheriff of Louth 1668. By his will (proved in Dublin 20 Jan. 1676-77), he left Bragganstown to his grand-nephew, Norman, son of his nephew,

CAPT. SYMON GARSTIN, who had migrated with him from England, and to whom the lands of Leragh and Ballykerrin, co. Westmeath, with the Castle of Leragh (still standing), were granted. After serving throughout the war, he settled at Drogheda, and d. there 1660. He was the patriarch of the family, being the common ancestor of all who have since borne the name of Garstin. By his wife Alice, who survived him (as did also his mother, Katharine), he had issue, Westmeath to his uncle John; and a dau., Norminda, m. (license dated 24 Dec. 1729) to her cousin, Rev. John Ball.

- ii. JOHN, of Leragh Castle, &c., who s. accordingly. His line we now follow, being that from which descends the present Braganstown family.

- iii. NORMAN, adopted by his grand-uncle, Major James Garstin, of Bragganstown. His line, that of the family formerly seated at Bragganstown, shall be taken up further on.

GIFFARD OF CHILLINGTON.

GIFFARD, WALTER THOMAS COURTENAY, Esq. of Chillington, co. Stafford, J.P., D.L., b. 11 Jan. 1839.

Lineage.—This is one of the most ancient and distinguished families in England.

OSBORNE DE BOLEBEC, a noble Norman, living in the time of RICHARD I., surnamed Sans Peur, Duke of Normandy, m. Avelina, sister of Gunnora, the second wife of Richard, Duke of Normandy, and by her had,

1. WALTER, who obtained the name of "Giffard," or the Liberal, and was created Count of Longueville by Duke Richard II., probably about 1025. He acquired great renown in the armies of WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR. In the subsequent success of his chief, the Comte de Longueville largely participated; he obtained no less than one hundred and seven lordships in the conquered country, and was constituted Earl of the co. of Buckingham. (For the line of this nobleman, see BURKE'S Extinct and Dormant Peerage.)

II. Osborne.

The 2nd son,

OSBORNE GYFFARDE, having likewise aided in the establishment of the Normans in England, had of course a portion of the spoil, and the fertile county of Gloucester was allotted as the locality of his reward. Here he held the extensive manors of Brimsfield, Rochemtune, Alderberie, and Stoehe; upon the first named of which he settled, and there subsequently a great castle was built (temp. King STEPHEN), which continued to be the residence of the family until it was destroyed by the army of EDWARD II., in the Baronial War, anno 1322. This Osborne d. about the year 1086, and was s. by his son,

ELIAS GYFFARDE, who, with Ala his wife, gave lands and woods in Bockholt to the Abbey of St. Peter, in Gloucester, about the year 1100. He left two sons,

1. ELIAS GIFFARDE, 3rd Lord of Brimsfield, who had three sons,

1 Elias, d. s. p. in 1191.

2 Walter, a benefactor to Gloucester Abbey.

3 Richard, one of the "Justices of the Court," temp. HENRY II. He was father of THOMAS GIFFARD, who s. his uncle, Elias, and carried on the line. His descendant, John Giffard, had summons to Parliament from 24 June, 1295, to 10 April, 1299, as Baron GIFFARD, of Brimsfield.

II. Gilbert.

The younger son,

GILBERT GIFFARD, left at his decease, with a dau. m. Peter Corbizon, of Studley, co. Warwick, and of Chillington, co. Stafford, a son,

WILLIAM GIFFARD, who appears to have been the first of the family who bore for arms, "Az., three stirrups or." He was father of

PETER GYFFARDE, who was highly distinguished for his military exploits in Ireland, under his kinsman, Richard de Clare, commonly called Strongbow, Earl of Pembroke, and was rewarded by a grant of the Manor of Tighmolin, in that kingdom. After his return from the Irish War, Sir Peter m. his cousin, Avicia Corbizon, and thus acquired the Manors of Chillington and Walton, in the co. of Stafford. He was s. by his son,

PETER GIFFARD, of Chillington, m. Margaret de Chuddeley, and was s. by his son,

3 Walter.

Peter Giffard, in his extended and chequered life, saw the entire downfall and the perfect restoration of his family. From the commencement of the great rebellion, he appears to have taken an active and decided part in it, for at an early period we find his estates confiscated, and himself a prisoner. Chillington, so recently receiving a royal guest, became a royal garrison. The estates were sold by the Drury House Commissioners, and the members of the family, after fighting in the King's army as long as any army existed, were in prison, in banishment, or in concealment. When CHARLES II. made his ill-advised descent on England, 1651, several of the Giffards joined him, and fought at Worcester. After his defeat, the King owed his safety, in a great measure, to the guidance of Charles Giffard, a nephew of Peter Giffard, of Chillington, and the fidelity of the Pendrills, the devoted retainers of the Giffards. Peter Giffard d. "full of days," 25 June, 1663, and was s. by his son,

THOMAS GIFFARD, Esq. of Chillington, m. 1688, Mary, dau. of John Thimbleby, Esq. of Irnham, co. Lincoln, but dying without issue, 1718, was s. by his kinsman (above mentioned), Lineage.—This family represents several old Kentish houses, and notably that of GODFREY of Lydde and Heppington, whose estates were retained by them till 1875, when they were alienated by the present representative.

Family of Godfrey.

This family is of great antiquity in Kent. Domesday records that Godfrey held manors in Petham and West Farleigh, and that Godfrey (called Dapifer) a Knight of the Archbishop, held of him Lenham and some lands in Sheppey.

The family became seated in the marsh country of Romney, Lydde, and Winchelsea, from the earliest mention of the lands. Godfrey obtained from King HENRY II. (as appears by the charter of Romney Marsh) the manor of Aldington, which, with the adjoining manor of Hurst, was held by his descendants in succession till, on the death of his lineal descendant, Thomas Godfrey, of Aldington, son of James Godfrey (will dated 1490), and on the death, s. p., of his two sons, Thomas, and Humphry (Mayor of Dover temp. EDWARD VI.) the manors and estates were divided between his two daus., co-heiresses, Agnes, m. William Blechynden of Mersham; and Rabege, m. John Le Clerk, alias Woodchurch, of Woodchurch, Kent (ancestress of Sir Philip Hoghton Clarke, Bart.).

Another scion early settled at Appledore, in the same vicinity, whose descendant, Robert Godfrey, son of John Godfrey of Appledore, granted by deed (dated June, 1261, and preserved in the Dering MSS.) certain lands and rights in Appledore to Henry de la Birche. The main branch, however, was seated at Lydde (a town in the old Aldington Manor), in the church of which they buried from time immemorial. The earliest of their monuments now remaining there is that of THOMAS GODFREY, * of Lydde, who d. 1430, and of Joan Tamworth, his wife,

* He is said to have been occasionally styled Godfrey, alias Fermor, though he is not so described on his monument, but it appears that at this period the family occasionally so styled themselves, probably from a marriage with an heiress of that name at an early date. The will is extant (dated 1445) of his Lineage.—The settlement in Kent of the family of Osborne (written anciently Osberne, and spelt very variously for some centuries) dates from the Saxon period. It appears from Domesday that SBERNE BIGA owned in the time of EDWARD the Confessor eleven messuages in Canterbury, and held of that King, as tenant in chief, the Manors of Ditton, Keston, Birling, Farborn, Pevington, Garvidon, and Postling, in Kent, and that at the date of the survey, Osberne held of the Bishop of Bayeux the manor of Buckland, and certain manors in the hundred of Easteley in the same county. Osberne Paisforer, Osberne Fitzletard, and Thomas Osberne are also mentioned in Domesday as holding manors in Kent. At the same period also flourished Osbern, Monk of Canterbury, the friend of Lanfranc, and well known writer and biographer, one of the most learned and accomplished men of the day, who died in 1074. Hartlip is not mentioned in Domesday, but we find the family settled there from the earliest mention of the parish, where their seat was known as the Place House, or Hartlip Place, at an early date.

The earliest of the records now preserved at Hartlip Place are the wills of Marion and Juliana Osbyrn of Hartlip (each bearing date 1404, wherein they severally devise lands and tenements in Hartlip to their kinsfolk, Thomas, Marie, Elizabeth, and Juliana Osbyrn; and next the several wills of William Osborn of Hartlip, and also of Leysdon and East Church, in Sheppey, and of Alicia his wife (dated 1433 and 1464). He is presumed to be the William Osborn who was Bailiff of Canterbury 1429, 1431, 1435, 1442, and 1446, and M.P. for Canterbury 1438. He appears by his will to have been possessed of his Sheppey estates before inheriting those of Hartlip, to which he probably succeeded on the death s. p. of the above-mentioned Thomas.

THOMAS OSBORNE, of Hartlip, son and heir of the above William and Alicia (will dated 1534), was father, by Agnes his wife, who d. 1543, of, inter alios,

He obtained in 1573 from Clarenceux, King of Arms, a renewal of the arms borne by his ancestors, with the grant by increase of a crest ("as commonlye to all auncient arms there belonged non"). He m. Anna, dau. of Edmund Bardolje, Esq. of Ratmastede, Herts, and had, with other issue, his heir,

R. Milway, who inherited, and soon alienated the estate of Dane House; and Mary, m. Richard Tylden, Esq. of Milsted, Kent, who inherited the estate of Hartlip Place, which she devised to her dau. Lineage—The first of this family of whom any documentary accounts are handed down, was CAPT. In this document he is described as Capt. Jasper Grant, of the city of Waterford. Now it appears from Smith's and Ryland's Histories of Waterford, that a family of Grants were from an early period residents of the city and neighbourhood of Waterford, and it is not at all improbable that of this old family Capt. Jasper Grant was a descendant, and was enabled to purchase back his family inheritance, and become as it were a re-founder of his race. Capt. Lineage.—Ancient in lineage, brilliant in achievement, and conspicuous for great possessions and territorial influence, the family of Granville may challenge comparison with the oldest, most distinguished, and most historic houses recorded in this work. They claimed descent through the Earls of Corbeile from ROLLO, Duke of Normandy, and were Lords of Bideford, in Devon, at the Conquest, by gift of their kinsman, WILLIAM I. Their representative at the opening of the 16th century,

SIR THOMAS GRANVILLE, of Stow, was High Sheriff for Cornwall 1 HENRY VII., and, in 1501, was made of the Knights of the Bath on the marriage of Arthur, Prince of Wales. He d. 1513. By Isabel his 1st wife, dau. of Otho Gilbert, of Compton, Devon, he had two sons and six daus., and by his 2nd wife, Jane Jous, widow of — Hill, he had John (Rev.), Rector of Bideford; and a dau. The eldest son,

SIR ROGER GRANVILLE, of Stow, called the Great House-keeper, for his princely hospitality, High Sheriff for Cornwall 2 HENRY VIII., was knighted the year before his death, 1523. He m. Margaret, dau. and co-heir of Richard Whiteleigh, of Efford, by whom he had three sons and six daus. The eldest son,

SIR RICHARD GRANVILLE, Knt. of Stow, knighted 20 Dec. 1532, High Sheriff for Devon 1533, and subsequently Marshal of Calais, m. Matilda, dau. and co-heir of John Beville, of Gwarnock, and had, with three daus., two sons,

John, who d. without issue in his father's lifetime.

Roger, an Esquire of the body to HENRY VIII. 1545, and by him knighted. He was drowned off Portsmouth in the "Mary Rose" frigate in his father's lifetime. He m. Thomasine, dau. of Thomas Cole, Esq. of Slade, in the parish of Cornwall, Devon, and by her had a son, RICHARD, of whom presently.

Sir Richard d. 18 March, 1551, and was s. by his grandson,

SIR RICHARD GRANVILLE, Knt. of Stow, a gallant naval commander, who, at the age of 16, by permission of Queen ELIZABETH, served in the imperial army in Hungary, and attained high reputation for his achievements against the infidels. In 1571, he represented co. Cornwall in Parliament and was subsequently High Sheriff for that shire 1578, and complimented with the honor of Knighthood. But the bias of his mind was bent chiefly on the plans of foreign discovery proposed by his relative, Sir Walter Raleigh, and he preferred the enterprise of a naval, to the quiet of a senatorial life. He accordingly, with a squadron fitted out for the purpose, sailed for the coast of Florida, 1585, where he left a colony of 100 men, and then returned home. Many and successful were his subsequent voyages and services, and heroic his death, in an engagement with the Spaniards. John Evelyn, in relating this action, exclaims, "Than this, what have we more? What can be greater?" Sir Richard m. Mary, eldest dau. and co-heir of Sir John St. Leger, Knt. of Annery, Devon, and had four sons and five daus. The eldest son,

SIR BERNARD GRANVILLE, Knt. of Bideford, Devon, and Stow, Cornwall, was High Sheriff 38 ELIZABETH, for Cornwall and M.P. for Bodmin. He m. Elizabeth, sole dau. and heir of Phillip Bevil, of Killigarth, Cornwall, and had issue four sons and two daus., BEVIL, his heir; Richard (Sir), Knt. and Bart., a Cavalier Commander of great celebrity, "The King's General in the West" (m. Mary, dau. of Sir John Fitz, of Fitzford), and had one son, who was put to death by the Parliament; and one dau., Elizabeth, m. Col. William Lenard, a staunch Royalist; John, of Lincoln's Inn; Roger, drowned in the service of CHARLES I.; Gertrude, m. Christopher Harris, of Lanrest; and Elizabeth, d. unm. Sir Bernard Granville d. 1636. His eldest son was the celebrated

SIR BEVIL GRANVILLE, Knt. of Stow and Bideford, one of the boldest and most successful of the Cavalier leaders, called the "Bayard" of England, b. 23 March, 1595. His last and most brilliant action was at Lansdowne Hill, near Bath, where he fell in the arms of victory, 5 July, 1643. Sir Bevil m. Grace, dau. of Sir George Smythe, Knt. of Matford, Heavitree, Exeter, and had seven sons and six daus. Of the former, the 3rd surviving son, JOHN, who attended CHARLES II. in all his wanderings abroad, was only 16 years old when he took the command of his father's regiment, and was in all the considerable battles of the west of England, as well as the battle of Newbury, where he was severely wounded. Sir John was chosen negotiator and messenger from the King, to deliver to both Houses of Parliament the King's letter from Breda, and received their acknowledgments for his services in that transaction. Thus pointed out to his country as a principal instrument of the Restoration, he was further rewarded with such honours as his services and those of his family might justly claim. He was, therefore, on the restoration of CHARLES II., created Earl of Bath, Viscount Lansdowne, and Baron Granville, of Pideford and Kilkampton (see BURKE'S Extinct Peerage). Sir Bevil's 4th son,

BERNARD GRANVILLE, was very active in serving CHARLES II. during his exile: "When all was concluded for His Majesty's restoration, and his brother, Sir John Granville, had received the thanks of both Houses of Parliament for the letters he brought, General Monk thought it proper to send his last despatches by one he could trust, which was Bernard Granville, his first-cousin,* who was to inform His Majesty that everything was ready for his reception." He was Gentleman of the Bedchamber to the Duke of Gloucester during his exile, and after the Restoration, Gentleman of the Horse and Groom of the Bedchamber to CHARLES II. He was M.P. for Lostwithiel, 1 CHARLES II., and served for Launceston, Saltash, and Bodmin, in all the Parliaments of that reign; also for Plymouth in 1 JAMES II.; also for Saltash again in the reign of WILLIAM till the day of his death. He m. Anne, only dau. and heir of Cuthbert Morley, Esq. of Hornby, co. York, and d. 1701, leaving issue, Lineage.—The surname of this family is derived from a place so-called near Rotherham, co. York.

ROGER DE GRESBROKE (temp. HENRY II.) is mentioned as holding of the fee of Alice, Countess of Ewe, dau. of William de Albiney, Earl of Arundel, by Queen Adeliza, relict of HENRY I.

The first of the family at Shenstone was

BARTHOLOMEW DE GRESBROKE, who had a grant, temp. HENRY III., from Robert de Grendon, Lord of Shenstone. He was dead in 3 EDWARD I. (1274-5), leaving a widow, Edith, and two sons,

I. ADAM, whose line ended with his grandson, Walter de Tyneslowe, whose dau. and co-heir, Isabel, m., temp. EDWARD II., Sir William de Wentworth, ancestor of the Earls of Strafford,

II. Robert, of Shenstone, 2 EDWARD II., 1309, whose lineal descendant and representative, ROBERT GRAZEBROOKE, Gent., of Shenstone, d. s. p. 1728, leaving his property to his nephew, Graisbrook Cramp, son of Thomas Cramp, of Longdon, Gent. by Sarah, his sister and co-heir.

Contemporary with John Gresbrooke, of Shenstone (temp. Henry VIII.) was

JOHN GREYSBROOKE, of Middleton, co. Warwick. His parentage has not been ascertained, but it is probable that he was a near kinsman of his namesake at Shenstone, as by his will, dated 26 May, 1540, and proved at Lichfield 1542, he bequeaths "XlId." to "the makynge of Pool Brygge," which is in the parish of Shenstone, so that he was presumably a native of that place. By Isabel, his wife (whose will dated 15 March, 1550, was proved at Lichfield 25 Jan. 1554-5) he had (with two daus., Margaret, Mrs. Shurreock; and Elizabeth, Mrs. Hylley) five sons,

2 Nicholas, bapt. at St. Martin's, Birmingham, 13 Jan. 1555-6. Died before 1621, leaving a dau., Mrs. Haddon.

2 Winifred, bapt. at St. Martin's on the same day as her brother Nicholas.

iv. Robert.

v. Hugh, of Hints, co. Stafford, m. at Hints, 7 Oct. 1576, Margaret Sayars, and had (with other issue) a dau.,

Thomasine, dau. of Henry, 2nd Lord Blayney, from whom sprang the Lords Bingley, the family of Lane-Fox, and the present Lord Conyers; Thomas Fox, M.P., of the Moat House, Tamworth; and Timothy Fox, Rector of Drayton Bassett, ancestor of Fox, of Osmaston, &c., co. Derby.

The eldest son,

ALVEREY GREYSBROOKE, of Middleton, Gent., possessed estates at Middleton and Wishaw. He m. Margaret, dau. of Thomas Kene, of Sutton Coldfield, co. Warwick, by his wife, the eldest dau. of William Gibbons, of Little Sutton, and Agnes, his wife, younger dau. of William Harman, of Moor Hall, and sister of John Harman, alias Vesey, Bishop of Exeter, and had issue,

ROBERT GREYSBROOKE, of Middleton. His wife's name has not been discovered, and his will is missing, though it appears from the "Act Book" at Lichfield that it was proved 22 Oct. 1595, by his son,

JOHN GREYSBROOKE, or GREYSBROOKE, of Middleton, Gent., m. Mary, dau. of William Colmore, of Birmingham, by Anne, his wife, dau. of William Fynney, of Cannock, co. Stafford, and grand-dau. of William Colmore, of the same place, by Joan, his wife, dau. of Henry Hunt, of Tanworth, co. Warwick, and had issue,

GREENWELL OF GREENWELL.

GREENWELL, HENRY, Esq., of Greenwell, co. Durham, b. 30 Oct. 1819; s. 1839.

Lineage.—This very ancient family, seated at Greenwell, or Greenwell Hill, in the parish of Wolsingham, from time immemorial, is one of three houses in co. Durham (the other two being Lumley, of Lumley, and Lambton, of Lambton), which retain in the male line the estates from which they take their name.

Though by tradition possessed of Greenwell from a still earlier time, the first recorded ancestor is Gulielmus Presbyter, who appears in the Boldon Book, A.D. 1183, as holding lands at Greenwell. His sons, James de Grenwelle and Richard de Grenwelle, appear as witnesses to several charters granted by Bishop Pudsey. From about this date title-deeds in the possession of the present representative, and other authorities, prove the unbroken descent of the property. Younger branches of this "indigenous" stock (as Surtees, the historian of Durham, terms it) are seated at Ford and Broomshields, in the same co. Camden, in 1602, confirmed to William Greenwell, of London, Merchant (the representative of a branch whose eventual heiress, Mary, dau. of William Greenwell, by his wife Mary, dau. of Sir John Darell, Bart., m. Thomas Legh, Esq. of Ridge), "The ancient arms of the worshipful family of Greenwell, of Greenwell Hill, in the county palatine of Duresme, from which the said William Greenwell is descended." Another line, long seated at Corbridge, in Northumberland, is now represented by Walpole Eyre Greenwell, Esq. of Blandford Square, London, who is great-great-grandson of Capt. Whitfield Greenwell (who was killed at the battle of Glenshiels 1719) by his marriage, in 1713, with Jane, dau. and co-heiress of John Aynsley, Esq. of Highlaws, Northumberland. Some of his ballads—as “The Sprig of Shillelagh,”—are still to Irishmen familiar as household words. Mr. Lysaght was M.A. of St. Edmund's Hall, Oxford, and was called to the English Bar 1788, when his professional duties began by his being counsel for Lord Hood in the memorable contested election between that nobleman and Charles James Fox; but he shortly afterwards joined the Bar of Ireland, at which he continued to practice until his death, 1810. By his father, John Lysaght, Esq. of Brick Hill, co. Clare, he was descended from a branch of the house of Lisle. GUTHRIE OF GUTHRIE.

GUTHRIE, JOHN DOUGLAS MAUDE, Esq. of Guthrie, co. Forfar, b. 5 March, 1856; s. his father 1877.

Lineage.—The surname of Guthrie is of great antiquity in Scotland. Crawford, in his Lives of the Officers of State, says, that the Guthries held the Barony of Guthrie by charter from King DAVID II. But that they were men of rank and property long before the reign of JAMES II. is manifest by the fact that Master Alexander, of Guthrie, is a witness, in a charter granted by Alexander Seaton, Lord of Gordon, to William, Lord Keith, afterwards Earl Marshal, dated 1 Aug. 1442; and that he obtained the lands of Kilkendrum, in the Barony of Lower Leslie, and Sherifdom of Forfar, to himself and Marjory Guthrie, his spouse, by charter, from George, Lord Leslie, of Leven, the Superior, dated 10 April, 1457. By the above-mentioned Marjory he had three sons, of whom the eldest,

SIR DAVID GUTHRIE, Baron of Guthrie, was Sheriff of Forfar 1457. i. Helen Sybella.

ii. Isabel Eliza, deceased.

iii. Constance Caroline.

iv. Lucy Sophia.

Lineage.—It is now ascertained by documentary evidence the most authentic, that, although the last Laird of Corehead, undoubtedly the chief of all who bore the name of Halliday, and the lineal representative of the first who assumed it, left no heir male of his body, and that the direct Scottish line failed between the years 1400 and 1450, yet that WALTER, the minstrel (Master of the Revels to EDWARD IV.) was a younger son of the Annandale chieftain.

WILLIAM HALLIDAY, 3rd son of Henry Halliday, of Minchin Hampton, and grandson of WALTER, the minstrel, was presumed to have been father of

THEOBALD HALLIDAY, who lived contemporaneously with William Halliday, of Rodborough. He went to Holland, and there married Miss Hay, heiress of Tulliebole, in the co. of Fife, only dau. of Col. Hay, of the service of the States General, and was s. by his son,

JOHN HALLIDAY, educated in Holland, who inherited at the decease of his mother the lands of Tulliebole, and established himself there. It would appear that this John Halliday was a person of some distinction, for he was in great favour with King JAMES VI., who during the progress of the Court from Stirling to Falkland, in his youthful days, often slept at Tulliebole House, midway on the journey, and is said to have conferred the honour of Knighthood upon the Laird.* His 2nd son,

WILLIAM HALLIDAY, who became Provost of Dumfries, and one of its representatives in Parliament, had the honour of entertaining the same monarch at his house in that Royal Burgh, after the King's accession to the Crown of England, in his Majesty's last visit to Scotland. The Provost died at a good old age, leaving a numerous progeny by his wife, a dau. of Gabriel Johnston, a Merchant and Burgess of Dumfries. One of his sons,

THOMAS HALLIDAY, came into England, but returned to Scotland, anno 1697, in the army of the Duke of Monmouth, which had been raised to quell the rebellion of the Covenanters; finding, however, that all his kinsmen were on the side of Presbytery, he left the King's service.
